

Application IRB

1. Applicant information:

Personal information:

Surname *

First Name *

Faculty *

Institute (if applicable)

Chair / Working Group/Team (if applicable)

Room / Office

Phone (if applicable)

Email *

Final grades master studies

Publications:

Awards & Grants:

Other achievements:

2. Doctoral project information:

(Working) Title of your doctoral project*

Supervisor No. 1*

Supervisor No. 2

(Estimated) Beginning of doctoral project*

Estimated date of final examination / oral defense*

Are you a member of a structured doctoral programme? (e.g. IGSN, IDS, IGB, GSCB, RGS)*

Describe your doctoral project (max. 4200 characters)*

[Describe your doctoral project in a generally understandable way. If your doctoral project already has an international dimension, please also outline what that dimension consists of.]

Keywords *

[e.g. molecular neurobiology, applied ethics, material science,...]

3. Eligibility:

- I am a Master student within my final semester. (If you have not been accepted as a doctoral researcher by your faculty yet, you have to submit a letter of your future supervisor confirming the supervision and the estimated start of the doctorate.)
- I am a doctoral researcher during my first year of the doctorate. (The time between the acceptance as a doctoral researcher (letter of acceptance by the faculty) and the decision on your IRB grant should not exceed 12 months.)

4. Internationalization Concept:

This section deals with your internationalization concept. Please note: For your IRB concept you do not need to include detailed time schedule, work plan and budget plan but a layout of activities suiting your internationalization plan for your doctorate. Write your concept in a generally understandable way.

Your planned international activities (max. 4200 characters)*

[Please comment on the impact and benefit of your planned international activities for your doctoral project and for your qualification. Please take into account the feasibility of your concept and its activities.]

Impact of your internationalization concept on your developing network and your self-conception as a scientist (max. 2500 characters)*

[Please refer to your network and possible impacts on the networks of other researchers and/or RUB. Describe the impact on your visibility and situation in the research community.]

In addition to the IRB, the Research School also offers Project International (PR.INT) as a funding opportunity for the implementation of international research-relevant projects. Why do you apply for the IRB and not PR.INT? (max. 1900 characters)*

[Please describe the advantages that the IRB would have for the internationalization of your doctoral project compared to several separate PR.INT activities. Take note of the information on the IRB and PR.INT given on our homepage.]

Why are you the right candidate for the IRB (max. 1500 characters)?*

5. Letter of Reference:

Letters of reference must be submitted confidentially via e-mail (Sarah.Gemicioglu@rs.rub.de) or mail (RUB Research School, Sarah Gemicioglu, FNO 01/146)

1st reference letter:

The first reference letter should be written by your first or second supervisor. It should focus on your personal and professional competencies. The purpose of the first reference letter is to convince the reviewers that you will successfully realize your internationalization concept and that you are the right person to be granted an IRB.

2nd reference letter:

The second reference letter must be written by an expert in your field of research (it can be written by your first or second Supervisor, however, it is mandatory that both letters are written by different persons). The second reference letter should focus on your international concept with respect to your doctoral project. It should give an expert opinion on your cooperation partners and your intended international activities.

6. Attachments:
